35 SECTIONS IN OIL LEASE ZONE

SAY OIL PROSPECTS AROUND FRANKFORT ARE GOOD; OIL LEASE MEETING AT FRANKFORT APRIL 3

Frankfort township is all agog over the prospects of this being turned into a veritable oil field. At a meeting held Tuesday night in the Frankfort village hall forty interested land owners were present.

Joseph McGlashen and the oil men who are certain that oil exists in this region, gave an outline of their plans and will hold another meeting next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Frankfort Hall Company hall at which time they will be ready to sign up oil leases on farms and other real estate in the zone of the proposed oil activities.

According to the plans outlined by the promoters they will seek leases on 35 sections of land. The territory to be covered by these oil leases will extend four miles east of Frankfort over the line into Cook County, five miles south, one mile west and two miles north of the village of Frankfort. Soon as enough oil leases have been secured, the oil promoters expect to start drilling for oil.

The oil men have been making tests and surveys for months in this section without the local residents knowing what was going on. Joseph McGlashen of Chicago who owns about a thousand acres of land in Frankfort township is vitally interested in the oil search.

A big crowd of land owners is expected out at the meeting next Tuesday night.

COMMUNITY CENTER FOUNDATION TO OFFER SERIES OF LECTURES BY NOTED EDUCATOR.

The Community Center Foundation have been fortunate in getting Dr. Emmerson O. Bradshaw executive secretary of the Chicago Council of Religious Education to deliver a series of lectures at the Foundation.

These lectures will be on the "Message and Program of the church" and will be given in the form of a standard training course of the International Council of Religious Education. Anyone taking the course may obtain official credit for them. They will start at 7:30 Thursday evening April 5 and continue for six consecutive Thursday evenings. They will be given primarily for Sunday school teachers and parents, but will be of great interest to every one and all are invited to attend.

Dr. Bradshaw is considered one of the outstanding Religious Educators of today. His books are used in most Daily Vacation Bible schools and widely used in religious work. He had much to do with starting the Daily Vacation Bible school and has direct charge of its promotion now through the Council of Religious Education.

There will be no charge for the course of lectures as Dr. Bradshaw is doing it because of his interest in the Foundation. All of the Sunday school teachers of this section are urged to attend and all others who are interested in a vital approach to this problem of the Message and program of the church today. There is a great need to think through on this. It is your opportunity to share in this constructive thinking. You are invited to all of the lectures or one or as many as you are able to attend.

R. N. A. OFFICERS AND CHARTER MEMBERS NITE

The meeting of the Tinley Park R. N. A. took place Tuesday night at the usual time with oracle Wana-macher in the chair. Deputy Neighbor Pearman, her husband and sister from California were the honored guests. After the meeting the two charter members, Neighbors Anne Fulton and Glogowart, with all the officers and members marched to the dining room, where plenty of chop suey, rice and angel food cake were served. The visitors and charter members were presented with a gift at the table. There are two more charter members, but they were unable to attend, Mrs. Andres of Aurora and Mrs. C. Brodhuhn, the latter being ill. We were sorry to have them miss the meeting.

The members of Dew Drop Camp extend their heartiest thanks to the officers for a wonderful evening and planning such a fine party for all. It was also the occasion of the 39th birthday of the R. N. A. and we all hope there will be many more birthdays, each one better than the last.

FRANKFORT SCHOOL NEWS

Instead of our regular Friday morning exercises we have arranged the past three weeks, for the different rooms to have something special. On Friday March 16, the Primary room had charge and gave us a very nice program, which was a variety of speeches and songs.

On Friday afternoon, March 23, at 3:15 the Intermediate room gave a program for the benefit of the Primary and upper grade rooms and anyone else that wanted to attend. A portion of the program was given over to the celebration of Easter

Ruth Brannon At Mokena Next Mon.

The Democratic rally which was to have been held at the St. Mary hall in Mokena last Monday night was postponed due to the stormy weather to this coming Monday night at 7:30 p. m. Miss Ruth Brannon, the much advertised candidate for congress will be the principle speaker. Other Democratic candidates will also speak.

TINLEY COMMUNITY GOSPEL NEWS

The Tinley Park Gospel service next Sunday evening will be favored by a visit from the Spoolstra sisters. This young ladies quartet is known to most of the people in the community and those who have not heard them will want to attend the service in the community hall at 7:45 p. m.

The Christian Business Men's committee who conduct Chicago Noon-day services, sent Rev. C. L. Eicher to speak at the service last Sunday evening.

Rev. Eicher spent many years in India and from his wide experience brought a very inspiring message.

The Committee will send Rev. Moore next Sunday evening.

ORLAND LUTH. BAKE SALE SATURDAY AFTERNOON MARCH 31st, LOEBE'S STORE

The Lutheran Ladies Aid of Orland will hold their Easter Bake Sale this Saturday and will have a fine line of home baked goods. Come and get yours.

Since there was no school on last Friday the next program was on March 29 at 2:45 with the upper grade room in charge. There were some numbers from the primary and intermediate rooms. Everyone is welcome to come and enjoy these programs with us.

WOLF ROAD CASE SET FOR NEXT TUESDAY

Following a legal battle of an hour and a half before Judge W. R. Hunter of Kankakee County in the Will County Circuit court Monday afternoon, Judge Hunter set the final date for hearing arguments on the temporary injunction suit of the Cleveland school district against the Wolf Road right of way being continued to the Lincoln Highway. The final date was set for next Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the Will County court.

State's Attorney Wm. R. McCabe and attorney Wm. D. Heise tried to have the case set over until after the primary election, but attorney Albert H. Krusemark representing the county, insisted that the case be brought to immediate trial. Judge Hunter was willing to hear the case last Tuesday but the attorneys for the school directors said they were not ready to go on with the case so the date was set for next Tuesday.

Tinley Woman's Club To Hold An Indian Program Monday

The Tinley Park Women's Club will meet at luncheon and for an afternoon "Indian" program Monday April 2nd at 2:00 o'clock in the English methodist church.

Mrs. S. Y. Patterson, president of the Indian Foundation, will talk on "Pottery, old and new." Exquisite articles of rare beauty will be displayed. Mrs. Patterson will bring with her, Checo, a Navajo Indian, who will demonstrate Indian rug weaving, and Knapo Paos, an Indian girl, who will demonstrate modeling in clay, and Piawambo, Apache Indian, who will sing. These Indians will be clothed in their native garments.

The luncheon at noon will be cafeteria, and the menu will be Indian consisting of venison, hominy, squash bread and baked apples. Reservations should be made Mrs. Wyman telephone 18-M.

Following is a second list of character members to date: Mesdames: Chas. Hess, Francis Rice, A. Pelton, Harry Mager, Frank Baldwin, E. B. Campbell, Albert Koehler, Fred Fletcher, Fred Goebel, Arthur Beck, Selby Hirsch, Irvin Mohr, Henry Voss, Ada Schellhase and Wm. Semmler, the later two of Mokena.

The following announcements are made: On April 3, in the Ridge Field House at 96th and Longwood Drive will be held the Third District annual meeting with the Brainerd Women's Club as hostess. Mrs. Fred Waterman presiding. This meeting begins at 10:00 o'clock in the morning.

On April 6th, will be held the 40th anniversary birthday party of the I. F. W. C. in the Grand Ballroom of the Sherman hotel in Chicago. Diversions will be musical, cards followed by a social tea.

Orland School Honored on Program

Last Friday all members of the Achievement Club, including all the pupils of the Upper Grades, spent the day at the Field Museum in attendance at the Achievement Officers Convention. An enjoyable as well as profitable time was the opinion of everybody. The Orland Club presented the regular business meeting as their contribution to the afternoon program.

An operetta, "The Flight of Achievement", a grade school chorus, a rural school chorus, a band concert, and a Rhythm Band demonstration were some of the other features of the day's program. The county declamation contest was also held the same day. Members of the Club felt highly honored that they were given an opportunity to contribute to such a fine program.

Orland Woman's Club to Meet

The Orland Park Women's Club will hold its regular meeting April 5 at 7:30 p. m. in the James Greer building. This evening will be Men's night and all members are urged to bring their men folk out. Mr. Frank Hesel, horticulturist of an Elmhurst nursery will be the guest speaker. He will speak on "How to build a garden including rock garden." He will illustrate his talk with lantern slides. Please note time of meeting.

Republican Rally At Green Garden

A republican rally will be held Wednesday April 4 in the Green Garden Town Hall. The various Republican candidates will be present. Everyone is invited to attend.

Gerhard Lankenau Succumbs To Illness

Gerhard J. Lankenau 66 years old, who had been suffering with a heart ailment for the past two months, was found dead in his bed at his home in Frankfort at 7:30 o'clock, Monday morning March 26. Mr. Lankenau had walked to the kitchen for a drink at 5:30 o'clock in the morning and evidently died soon after returning to his room.

The deceased was born in Green Garden on March 7, 1868, where he lived until his marriage in 1890 to Miss Katie Stellwagen, when he moved with his bride to a farm in Frankfort township. Here he lived and worked until sixteen years ago when he accepted a position as guard at the State penitentiary near Joliet. He held this position up to two months ago when heart trouble forced him to give up this work.

Mr. Lankenau is survived by his widow, one son, Floyd W., five daughters, Mrs. Hilda Lambrecht, Mrs. Lulu Breidert, Mrs. Elsa Warning, Mrs. Beulah Kohlhaugen and Miss Viola Lankenau, the later being a teacher in the Frankfort public school. Also surviving are one brother, William Lankenau who is president of the Frankfort State Bank, and two sisters, Mrs. Adam Holl of Monee and Mrs. Philip Stellwagen of Frankfort.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the home to the St. Peter Evangelical church, the pastor Rev. G. G. Gerhold officiating. Burial was in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

Must Reprint Primary Ballots

Judge W. R. Hunter in the Circuit Court at Joliet Wednesday granted a writ of mandamus to two candidates for the state Legislature who claimed that instructions to voters on ballots had been printed erroneously.

As a result Albion F. Delander, clerk of Will County must reprint instructions at his own expense, directing citizens to "vote for three" instead of two candidates for the Legislature in the Forty-first senatorial district.

Mandamus proceedings were started a week ago by Mark Bemis of Glen Ellyn and Martin N. Miller, Joliet, candidates for the Legislature. They charged that instructions had been illegally circulated with the "vote for two" clause due to the fact that the Republican senatorial committee failed to agree on two candidates at a meeting prior to March 6 as provided by law.

The senatorial body must meet before this date if the usual two candidates provided by law are to be placed before the electorate. The committee did agree on two names six days after the deadline, but Judge Hunter ruled that this was too late and that it is mandatory that three candidates be placed before the voters.

Tinley M. E. To Hold Easter Program

Easter services will be held next Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal church in the village of Tinley Park. An appropriate solo will be sung by Mr. Campbell with accompaniment by Mrs. Campbell and a duet will be sung by the Misses Luella Foskett and Genevieve Oulman. The pastor will deliver an Easter message and the Sacrament of Baptism will be administered to the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Crist. Several people will unite with the church by letter and also upon confession of faith and an opportunity will be given to any desiring to unite with the church on probation, who are not now members of any church. We anticipate a splendid service and invite every one desiring to come and worship with us. All are welcome.

Easter services will also be held in the country church in the German language at 11:30 a. m.

Tinley Licenses Must Be Paid By April 7

Tinley Park is putting on a decided drive to collect village and state automobile licenses. The village board has ordered that all licenses not paid by April 7 will be collected by the police department. Remember if these licenses are not paid by April 7, arrests will be made thereafter.

Mokena Fire Dept. Furnishes Water

When the water pipe at the Rock Island water tank at Mokena froze Tuesday morning, a large freight engine was unable to take water. The local fire truck was pressed into service and pumped 2000 gallons of water from the water mains into the engine tender.

Ruth Blanes Howell For Loss of Blue Eagle From Posters

Miss Ruth Brannon of Manhattan, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 11th Congressional district comprising Will, DuPage, Kane and McHenry counties, is one of the best advertised candidates in the race as a result of an order from the State NRA authorities that she desist from using the Blue Eagle in her political advertising as the use of the Eagle for such purposes is against section 10 of the code which forbids its use by politicians in their political advertising.

Miss Brannon's picture and those of her popular bird have appeared in many newspapers thruout this section since the NRA ordered her to drop the blue eagle stunt. Miss Brannon has had a force of workers busy thruout the congressional district painting out the Blue Eagle from her posters.

Miss Brannon blames James A. Howell for losing her famous bird. Howell is seeking the same office on the same ticket.

TINLEY CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HOLDS MEETING

The first Christian Science service in Tinley Park was held Tuesday evening in the real estate office of Paul Rauhoff. Out of town readers were present and there was a good attendance. These meetings will be held every Tuesday night at the same place until further notice.

Mokena M. E. Ladies Aid To Hold An Easter Bake Sale

The M. E. Ladies of Mokena are giving their annual Easter Bakery Sale Saturday, March 31st at Ona McGovney's real estate office in Mokena from 2 to 5 p. m.

PETITION TO SELL OLD SCHOOLS

The past week petitions have been circulated asking the voters of the Mokena school district to vote on the matter of selling the old public school building located at the east end of the village and also the one room building in the former Marti district on Wolf Road.

The question will be placed on the regular school election ballot to be voted at the annual school election on Saturday, April 14th.

If the voters vote favorably the matter of selling the buildings will be left to the school trustees of Frankfort township.

The old school house in the village was erected over 50 years ago at a cost of $10,000. It is estimated that there are three carloads of lumber in the building.

It has been estimated that there is enough lumber in the building to construct two bungalows 24x32 feet each and for a garage for each bungalow.

Herman Schweser has been circulating the petitions mentioned.

Friends Regret Passing of Senator Arthur A. Huebsch

It was with keen regret that the many friends of State Senator Arthur A. Huebsch in this section heard of his passing away in the Presbyterian hospital in Chicago Friday morning following a stroke attributed to cerebral hemorrhage while he was making an address on March 9.

Senator Huebsch represented the 7th district in Cook County in which Tinley and Orland are located.

Senator Huebsch appeared on the Wolf Road dedication program held in Mokena in the late fall of 1930.

He had three sons. His wife, who survives him, is a member of the bar. The Senator's home was in Brookfield. Funeral services were held Monday morning of this week.

ILLINOIS
STATE NEWS

Arthur Cutts Willard, acting dean of the college of engineering, was elected president of the University of Illinois by unanimous vote of the board of trustees and will take office July 1. President-elect Willard, who will be the seventh person to hold the position, is internationally known in the field of heating and ventilation. He has been consultant on ventilation for the Holland vehicular tunnel under the Hudson river and served as consultant on the proposed Chicago subway in 1930. A graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Dean Willard joined the faculty of the University of Illinois in 1913 as assistant professor in the department of mechanical engineering. Four years later he was made a full professor, and in 1920 was named head of the department of mechanical engineering, and last fall assumed the duties of acting dean of the college of engineering. The election of Dean Willard came after the board had named Walter W. Williams of Benton president of that body to succeed Edward E. Barrett of Chicago, who has held the position for two years. Harrison E. Cunningham was re-elected secretary and Lloyd Morey was re-elected controller.

Democratic politicians in Chicago were stirred by the publication of a sworn statement reported to have been made by the late Moe Rosenberg, Twenty-fourth ward leader, to federal officials in Washington in an effort to compromise a charge of income tax evasion. Rosenberg told the federal authorities, according to the statement, that not all of his huge income remained in his possession; that he gave $500,000 to politicians and officeholders for campaign purposes in 1929 and 1930 alone, and that for this reason he did not believe he owed taxes on it.

More than 3,000,000 acres of Illinois land, largely unsuited for farming and not yet seriously eroded, has been found suitable for reforesting in the course of a state-wide survey being conducted by Governor Horner's state planning commission. This land and the trees which it can grow to provide an economic asset to the state in another generation is scattered over the state and might well be utilized for reforestation through a joint arrangement between the federal government, the state and individual farmers. Such is the present viewpoint of Col. H. L. Kellogg, state planning engineer in charge of the plan commission.

A Century of Progress for 1934 in Chicago will open Saturday, May 26, one day earlier than last year. Thus, the fair will be open over the last week-end in May and Memorial day. Liquor regulations for the fair, announced by Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, provide that sale of alcoholic liquors will be permitted only by restaurants.

The study of the German language, banned during the World war, will be resumed at the Waukegan Township high school next September. Restoration of the proscribed study was voted unanimously by the school board as the result of many petitions and requests.

Because the state liquor law prohibits city officials from having any connection with the distribution or selling of alcoholic beverages, Mayor L. S. Heath of Robinson resigned. Heath is distributor of a popular brand of beer in connection with his long established ice cream and bottling business and decided that his business meant more than his job as mayor. He was succeeded by Alderman W. H. Masters, mayor pro tem.

Thomas F. Smith, seventy years old, assistant attorney general, died in Springfield of heart disease. He once served as assistant United States district attorney.

The Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will celebrate the fortieth anniversary of its founding with a card party and musical the afternoon of April 16 in the grand ballroom of Hotel Sherman in Chicago. Mrs. Roy F. Hoadley, vice president of the northern region, and Mrs. Truman F. Creager, federation treasurer, are general chairman of the event. Mrs. William Franklin Farrel is president of the federation.

Because he loved both of them, John Holcomb "stepped out of the picture" to let his wife and his brother marry 24 hours before the tragic death at their own hands, he told a coroner's jury as it investigated the double suicide of Mr. and Mrs. Ray B. Holcomb of Peatonica.

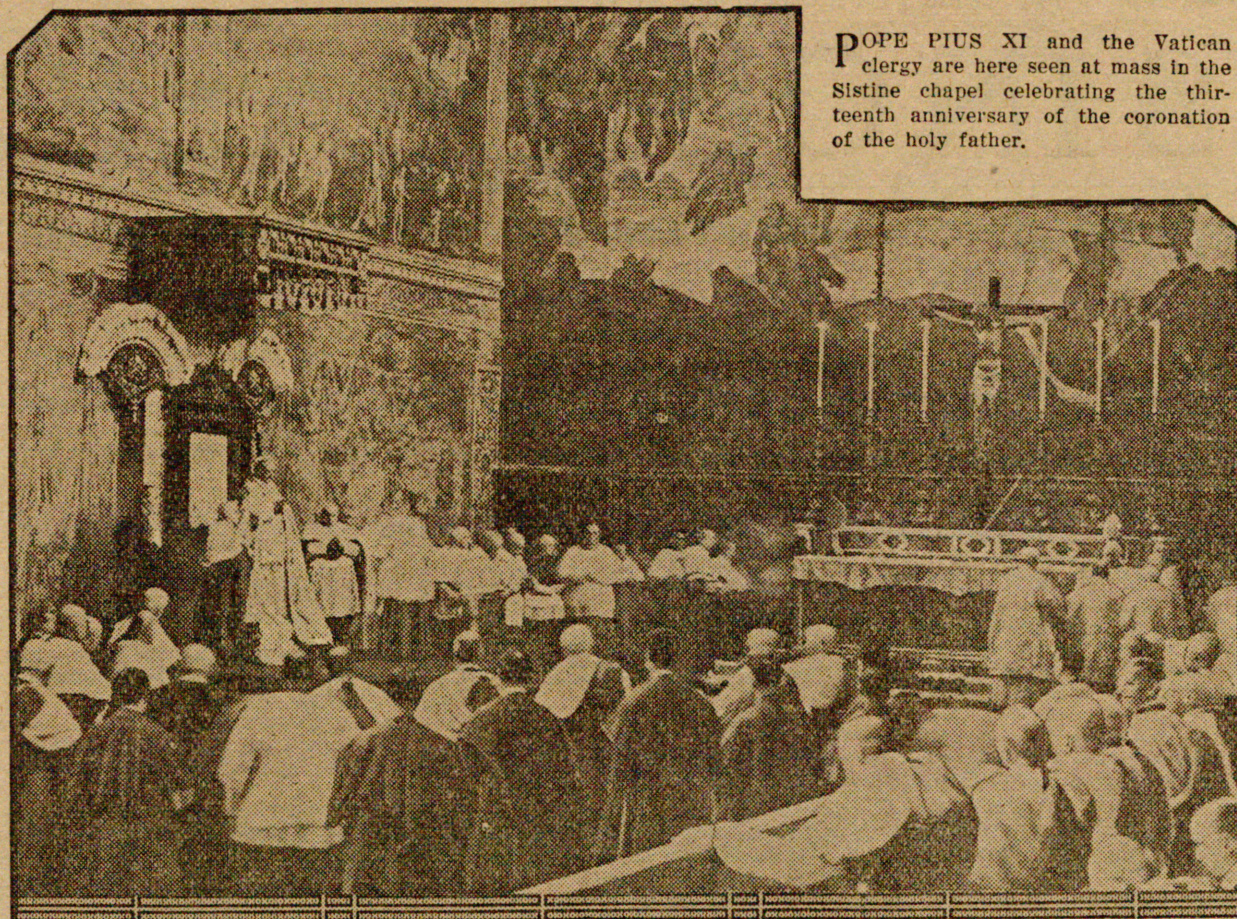

Hollis Butterfield, twenty-six, mail carrier, was indicted in Taylorville on a charge of murdering his wife, Zelma Wicker Butterfield, twenty-two, because he loved another woman.

Dr. Wilmot L. Ransom of Rockford, eighty-one years old, the oldest physician in Winnebago county, died of pneumonia. He was an 1874 graduate of the Northwestern university medical school.

Frederick E. Fisher, seventy-four years old, a resident of Joliet, and for 52 years an official in the construction and operating departments of various steam and electric railways, died following an operation. Mr. Fisher retired several years ago after serving 15 years as general manager of the Chicago and Illinois Valley Traction company.

Last year Elmer A. Taylor of Watseka, a Republican, promised to reduce his salary as state's attorney from $4,500 to $3,000 a year if elected, and he was. The other day he deposited $1,000 in the county treasury.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

NIMBLEHEELS JUMPS
BLINDLY

A FUNNY thing about this world is the unexpectedness of things. Have you ever noticed that? Good things come to you unexpectedly and bad things happen in just the same way. Some folks are always expecting bad things to happen, and it sometimes seems as if they were just the people to whom bad things do happen.

Nimbleheels, the Jumping Mouse, for his size the most wonderful of all jumpers, is one of the most timid members of a most timid family. Not even his cousin, Nibbler the House Mouse, is more timid. So, like all timid people, Nimbleheels is all the time expecting something to happen. Anyhow, that is the way it appears to his neighbors.

He Jumped Blindly and Then Wished He Hadn't.

To be sure, Nimbleheels has enough to make him timid. Like the rest of his family, he is forever being hunted. In the daytime he never knows when the keen eyes of a member of the Hawk family are upon him. At any time of day Black Pussy the Cat may come stealing through the grass looking for him. At night Hooty the Owl, Reddy Fox and Old Man Coyote hunt for him just as they do for his cousin, Danny Meadow Mouse. So Nimbleheels is always ready to jump at the least hint of danger.

You mustn't understand from what I have told you that Nimbleheels always goes in great long jumps when he moves about. That is what Peter Rabbit thought at first, and Peter was quite surprised when he discovered that Nimbleheels runs about on the ground in much the same way as his relatives. It is when he is startled or in great danger that Nimbleheels jumps.

He is much like Peter Rabbit in that he prefers the night to the day for traveling about. That is one reason why he is not better known by the little people of the daytime. That is the time he likes to sleep curled up in a snug little nest under a grassy tussock or upturned sod. This is just what he was doing one day not long after his visit to the dear Old Brier Patch. He was fast, very fast asleep, dreaming the dreams that mice love best. Not a single soul knew where his cozy little bed was. He had slept there for so many days without once being disturbed that he felt quite safe there. Whenever he went out looking for food he expected something to happen, but there in that carefully hidden little nest he never expected anything to happen.

This being so, perhaps you can imagine how Nimbleheels felt when he was awakened from those beautiful Mouse dreams by the shaking of the ground by heavy footsteps very near him. His eyes flew open, but down there among the stems of the tall grasses he could see nothing. Swish, swish, came through the grass and something very big and terrible seemed to be right over him. Nimbleheels was too frightened to think. But if he couldn't think he could jump, and jump he did, without once looking where he was jumping. He said afterward that there wasn't time for that. He jumped blindly and then wished he hadn't. He landed in the queerest place you can imagine. Can you guess where?

BONERS

When the book says that Sir Phillip Sidney was an aristocrat it means that he did stunts in a circus.

BONERS are actual humorous tid-bits found in examination papers, essays, etc., by teachers.

Spontaneous combustion is a term applied to a bad case of measles or smallpox.

A hottentot is a sausage sandwich with mustard on it.

Minnehaha is the feminine form of horse-laugh according to modern slang.

When Bassanio said "As I live, I am upon the rack," he meant, "Wherever I hang my hat is my home."

Vitamin is a kind of coal mined in Iowa.

SUNSHINE SPICE CAKE
AND OTHER THINGS

TAKE one cupful of brown sugar, one-half cupful of shortening, one cupful of sour milk, one-half teaspoonful of soda, two eggs, reserving one yolk for the frosting, two teaspoonfuls each of cinnamon and baking powder,

"The joy of bicycle riding," says ex-flickering Flo, "is to circle around a traffic cop on two wheels and laugh at his big feet at the same time without getting a ticket to traffic court."

one teaspoonful of cloves, one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg, one and seven-eighths cupfuls of flour. Mix in the order given and bake in layers.

Frosting for Sunshine Cake.

Mix one and one-third cupfuls of confectioner's sugar, one teaspoonful of melted butter, one egg yolk and enough thin cream to make of the consistency to spread. Place between layers and on top.

Orange Fudge.

Take one well washed orange, remove seeds and put through the food chopper, after grating the rind. Measure one cupful of water, mix the rind and juice and cook until tender; add one cupful of the liquid with enough of the juice to make with water a full cup, add four cupfuls of sugar and one small can of condensed milk. Boil to the soft ball stage. Beat until cool.

Creamed Potatoes.

When creaming potatoes, sprinkle a tablespoonful of caraway seed into them. This gives a delicious flavor to the dish which will be enjoyed by those who like caraway.

Cheese Dish.

Break into a glass baking dish one-fourth pound of rich cheese, add one-fourth of a cupful of cream and place in the oven to melt. Stir occasionally. As soon as the mixture is smooth add salt and three well beaten eggs. When the eggs are just ready to set, sprinkle with paprika and serve at once.

SET MY FEET IN THY WAY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SET my feet in thy way, dear God! It will be easy then To tread the paths the saints have trod Far from the haunts of men. There are two roads that I may take. One climbs to starry heights, And one, pursued for the vain world's sake, Is lost in bitter nights!

Set my feet in thy way, oh Lord, And let me see the sweep Of white-clad angels moving toward Thy presence, still and deep. There is a loveliness scarce seen Except by inner eyes, That lifts our souls beyond the mean, And makes us fine and wise.

Set my heart in thy way, dear God, And may my spirit find In reaching upward, with the cloud, The growth for me designed. There is a fuller life for me Above the common day. Help me to reach it finally! Set my feet in thy way!

Makes 80,000 Exposures a Second

DEVELOPED by a German electrical company, the camera shown above is capable of 80,000 exposures a second. Operations of the shortest duration, such as the oscillation of springs, valve motion of combustion engines, light processes of fuses and switches, and other movements which the human eye is incapable of seeing, can be clearly photographed. The reel runs with such rapidity that it is impossible to wind the exposed film which, therefore, is caught in a black bag attached to the camera and wound after developing.

Severe Itching Eruption on Baby's Face and Scalp

Cuticura Healed

"When baby was between two and three months old an eruption appeared on her face and scalp in small, red pimples which became inflamed with fluid and later formed a crust giving the skin a very disfiguring appearance. Due to the severe itching baby would scratch, causing bleeding. Not until she was five months old did hair grow on top of her head.

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I bought them. After two weeks there was a wonderful improvement, and with the use of one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. W. R. Groves, Lincoln, Ga., Aug. 10, 1933.

The WEDDING MARCH MURDER

by MONTE BARRETT

Copyright, 1933, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.
WNU Service.

SYNOPSIS

Waiting in the minister's study, Jim Franklin, about to be married to Doris Carmody, is stabbed to death. Peter Cardigan, with Sergeant Kilday, begins the investigation. Franklin, while waiting, had visitors among them his mistress, "Choo Choo" Train; his intended wife's father, Ambrose Carmody; her brother, Rylie; Daniel Bullis, politician, and a woman in a blue frock. Rylie Carmody admits trying to stop the wedding, after being informed by Webster Spears that Franklin was still friendly with Choo Choo, despite his approaching marriage. Kilday secures the dead man's keys. From Callis Shipley, one of the bridesmaids, Rylie's friend, the investigators learn nothing. An interview with Bullis is fruitless. Webster Spears admits informing Rylie Carmody of Franklin's relations with Choo Choo, for Doris Carmody's sake, in the hope of preventing the wedding. Fletcher, Franklin's man-servant, is reticent. An interview with Milo Dunbar, Franklin's law partner, and search of the man's office, reveals nothing of importance. Choo Choo admits her relations with Franklin were to continue after his marriage. Six of the seven keys Franklin carried are traced. Callis Shipley, again interviewed, confesses previous deception, but nothing new is elucidated.

The novelist puffed thoughtfully on his cigarette and studied the man before him through the pale cloud of expelled smoke. "You're very careful how you word it, Fletcher," he observed. "I notice you say nothing about any women who may have been in love with Mr. Franklin, regardless of how he felt in the matter. It isn't always easy to break off a love affair with a woman, even for a person of Jim Franklin's accomplishments along that line. Perhaps there has been a woman answering this description who has called here recently?"

"Not—that that I can recall, Mr. Cardigan."

"How about phone calls? Has any woman been calling here repeatedly, in the past few days?"

"There have been many calls, of course," Fletcher faltered. "But I couldn't tell you who they were from. Miss Train, yes, and Miss Carmody. If there have been others, I couldn't say who they were."

"But there were others?"

"Possibly. I really couldn't answer yes or no." The man's manner had grown less reluctant now.

"Have you ever seen this before, Fletcher?" In his palm Cardigan extended the revolver found in the rectory garden.

The servant made no move to touch it. "No, sir. I don't know much about guns."

"But this one belonged to Mr. Franklin! Surely you've seen it before."

"I didn't know he had a gun, sir. I had never seen it. I think there must be some mistake."

"He probably kept it in a drawer in the bedroom, or in his desk," Peter suggested.

"If he had, I should have known it, Mr. Cardigan," the man insisted. "I've never seen it before. I'm sure there's been some mistake."

Peter rose abruptly. "That's all, I think," he said. But he paused with one hand on the door, for a final question. "Who has been here since yesterday evening? Anyone?"

"No sir. Not since you left last night."

"He's not telling us all he knows," growled Kilday after the door had closed behind them.

"I'm sure of that," the novelist agreed. "But why? I don't think Fletcher had anything to do with Franklin's murder. After all, he's only a servant. Where would the motive be?"

"I couldn't see a motive for Webster Spears at first," declared the sergeant. Then he shook his shoulders wearily. "This case is giving me the willies," he complained. "I'll be suspecting you, next. Well, what do you think now? There were no new leads there, and I've got to see the district attorney right after lunch. If I don't have something, it'll be just too bad."

"And yet," the novelist answered slowly, "we know that the murderer carried Franklin's revolver to the church yesterday afternoon. That is certain. The simplest sort of logic convinces us that it must have been one of his intimate friends. No one else could have had access to it. The gun must have been taken within the past few days—preferably yesterday. If the crime had been planned far in advance, I find it hard to believe that the murderer would have chosen the church as the scene for his crime. It seems clear that no one could have taken it without Fletcher's knowledge, and we find him reluctant to talk. He had no motive, so it must have been some one for whom he has a feeling of sympathy or regard—some one he is willing to take some risk to shield. Who could that be?"

"Another woman, eh?" Kilday paused on the steps. "A former mistress, that the servant liked better than he did Choo Choo?"

"That sounds reasonable," Peter agreed. "Or else it was a new mistress. Franklin never had the reputation of being exceptionally constant in his loves."

"Getting back to your woman in blue," muttered the sergeant between drafts on his stogy. They had halted on the front steps of the apartment. "Everything leads back to her. But then, what about young Spears? What do you think of my theory concerning him now?"

"It's your question, you answer it," Peter declared wearily. "I'll admit you've built up a very convincing case against him. It has just one flaw. What could he have been doing with Jim Franklin's revolver? They weren't intimate friends. How could he have obtained possession of it?"

"That isn't so hard as you seem to think. Callis Shipley probably obtained it and passed it on to him. I agree with you on one point. I don't think the blow that killed Franklin could have been delivered by a woman. But that doesn't let this girl out—nor the woman in blue, either, if they were two different persons. If we can only prove this girl passed that gun on to Spears, we'll have a case pinned on him that will convince any jury."

"But the only man who can help us find her is Fletcher, and he won't talk," added the sergeant grimly.

"There's one other chance," Cardigan disapproved with him. "The fellow was positive he'd never seen the revolver before. If he was telling us the truth, perhaps Franklin kept it at his office. Let's go and see."

Milo Dunbar admitted them to his private office without delay. "I hope you gentlemen have some progress to report," he began, after seating them. "According to the papers, it's beginning to look like a political crime. If Jim was killed over this magistrate investigation, then the governor—"

"He wasn't," Sergeant Kilday interrupted him bluntly. "I don't think Dan Bullis had anything to do with it, except, possibly, to shield the woman in the case. He probably has to do that, because that woman overheard his conversation with Franklin. If he identifies her, she can tell what she knows, and it's probably plenty. But we think maybe we can find the woman without any help from Bullis."

"Good. As I told you yesterday, if there's any way I can help you—"

"There is, Mr. Dunbar. We want you to identify the revolver that Mr. Franklin kept in his desk drawer."

Milo Dunbar took the weapon Kilday extended, and examined it carefully. "I'm afraid I can't be of much help on that score, Sergeant. I didn't even know Jim had a gun."

"He bought that two years ago," Kilday pointed to the serial number stamped on the weapon. "We keep the registration of all guns sold. There can't be any doubt about that being his. We're anxious to find where he kept it."

"Of course," Dunbar agreed. "Jim could have kept a dozen guns in his office without my knowledge. Perhaps his secretary could help us. I'll see."

Before he could touch the button on his desk, Peter interrupted him. "Not yet," he cautioned. "I want to know something about his secretary, first. Is she young—attractive?"

The attorney shrugged. "Passably so. I hadn't noticed. I'll call her, and let you judge for yourself."

"Don't tell her who we are," the novelist cautioned. "Make some excuse to talk to her, without mentioning the revolver. It is barely possible she may be the lady in blue we are looking for. She certainly would have had an excellent opportunity to remove the weapon if it was kept in his desk."

The girl was called.

"I wish you'd get me Mr. Franklin's file of unanswered mail, Miss Wilson," said Dunbar. "I shall need it, in straightening out his affairs."

"Not the girl in blue, obviously," declared Cardigan, after she had left. Miss Wilson was attractive, and in her early twenties, but was decidedly a brunette.

"Not unless she wore a wig," Kilday added.

Peter shook his head. "Not with her coloring," he declared positively. "She couldn't get away with it. Call her back, Mr. Dunbar. Let's ask her about the revolver."

But the girl could not remember ever having seen the gun, although she was familiar with Franklin's affairs, and had frequent access to his desk.

"When he is out of the city," she explained, "it is often necessary for me to find papers in his desk. I'm sure I would have noticed it, if the gun had been there. It wasn't."

"How about the safe?"

"Only Mr. Franklin and Mr. Dunbar had access to the private section of the safe."

"He might have kept it in his private drawer there," Dunbar volunteered. "The one you examined last night. But he was the only person who could have taken it from there, and your point is that some one else procured the gun without his knowledge. That being true, it couldn't have been there. He must have kept it at his apartment, Cardigan."

That seemed to be the logical answer. Then Fletcher must have seen the gun before, must have recognized it, but refused to admit it. Who was he protecting? How was the servant involved in the murder of his master? The more he revolved the question in his mind, the more certain Peter became that the woman in blue was the key to the crime, and that Fletcher, if he could be made to talk, could reveal her identity. He could not share Kilday's conviction that the case against Webster Spears lacked only substantiating proof.

"Just like every other trail we've hit," Kilday complained, as they headed back to his office. "A blind alley. Dan Bullis and Fletcher are the only two who can identify that woman for us, but neither one of them will talk."

"We'll find her," Peter reassured him. "We've got to find her. It seems to me that, one way or another, she supplied the motive for this crime."

Kilday stopped and laughed aloud. "Why didn't I think of that before?" he asked, and then, not waiting for the question on Peter's lips, continued. "That sedan parked in front of Spears' last night was a Cadillac and it belonged to Callis Shipley. Did you notice its color? Was it green?"

"No good," declared Peter. "I had thought of that, but unless Bullis was deliberately trying to throw us off the track, the woman in blue could not have been Callis Shipley. You forget she never left the church at that time. She returned to the front. She was one of the bridesmaids and was in the church when the crime was discovered, only a few minutes later."

The sergeant meditated on this. "That's right, of course. But did Bullis tell us the truth? Was there a green Cadillac at all? We have reason to believe he isn't anxious for the woman in blue to be found because she could reveal what passed between him and Franklin during that interview."

"That's possible of course," Peter admitted.

Kilday returned to his former theory of the crime. "After all," he declared with much earnestness, "who do we know tried to stop this wedding? Webster Spears. Rylie Carmody, too, of course, but his action was instigated by Spears. Ambrose Carmody was in the front vestibule of the church. That fact is pretty well established. Both Doctor Abernathy and Nick Royce talked with Franklin after the senior Carmody left the study. Choo Choo Train was the last person we know of that saw Franklin alive. Royce saw her step into the study with him, a few minutes before the crime was committed. And yet it doesn't seem possible that she could have delivered the death blow. Added to that, we have the fact which she, herself, pointed out. She was known to be his mistress and she knew Royce had seen her enter that room with him. It doesn't seem reasonable to believe that she would have committed the crime under these circumstances. She was too openly inviting suspicion to be contemplating a crime."

"Doctor Abernathy was in the church. We know that. Daniel Bullis had a motive, but he evidently had left before Ambrose Carmody was admitted to the study. Of course," the detective admitted, "he might have returned later, but I hardly think so. He, too, had walked in there openly, and every one knew he and Franklin were enemies."

"Of all those we know to have been back there, that leaves only Nick Royce, Callis Shipley and the woman in blue. Whether we want to or not, we'll have to leave the woman in blue out of our present calculations, because we don't know who she is. As for Royce, what motive did he have? And Callis Shipley," the detective shrugged, "you know what I think about her. She's lying. Why? To protect some one? Then it must be Rylie Carmody, whom she admits she loves, or Webster Spears, who she says is only a good friend. Nevertheless we know that she visited him at his house last night, although she denies it."

"Peter," the detective continued earnestly, "your theory in regard to the finger-prints is a good one to follow concerning young Spears. You declared that the man who left finger-prints either didn't know a crime was about to be committed, or else he was a fool. The same thing goes for the people who visited that room. The person who visited Franklin openly certainly didn't know that a crime was about to be committed. To do so only invited suspicion. The man who killed Franklin slipped in the rear door, unseen."

"And no one saw Webster Spears enter that study. No one even saw him in the sacristy. But we know he left the church, just before the crime."

"That's why I'm going to have him arrested, without any further delay. He had the motive, he had the opportunity, and he was trying his utmost to stop that wedding. We've been blind not to see it from the first."

"And Callis Shipley?"

"You can't arrest anyone for telling a lie. That's all I've got on her, so far. First she tried to protect Rylie Carmody, then Webster Spears. But I've been thinking about that angle. If this girl knows so much, maybe young Carmody is in on the secret, too. From now on I'm going to have him shadowed."

Matter of Diet and Weight

Abundant Proof That It Is Not Always the Amount of Food Eaten That Regulates the State of Fat; Definite Program Needed.

Again comes a headline in a newspaper: "Scientist says weight is merely a matter of calories—all fat persons eat too much." Well, all of us know some people who eat largely and remain thin, and vice versa.

When I have talked to some of the research workers after hearing a lecture with the above text, I find that practically all of their experiences have been with persons who are so fat that they are obese. The specialists talk glibly about reducing people 50 to 100 or more pounds. They speak of original weights of 350 to 400 pounds. I have never been able to get them to commit themselves about cases of persons slightly over normal who would like to be thinner for the sake of comfort and beauty. Until I do I shall go on believing that there are some other facts besides the amount of food eaten, which regulates the state of fat.

There is one other admitted factor now, and that is, of course, exercise. Light diet, combined with exercises, if followed regularly, is most certain to bring results. People, however, sometimes get tired waiting, as in some cases it takes several weeks to begin to lose, while water replaces fat in tissues. Not long ago some one wrote to ask me what I thought of the use of glandular extracts in weight reduction.

That is, of course, a question for a physician, but it has been shown that what will work with one person will have no effect upon another, perhaps because the activity of the extract is destroyed by the digestive juices. Sometimes two or more glandular extracts will be combined in treatment under the almost daily supervision of the physician—sometimes there are the desired results—and sometimes not.

Dieting also should usually be done under the direction of a physician. The specialists who work with really obese persons find it necessary to have them under hospital care, not only to see that the principle of the prescribed diet is followed but to see that no more food than is ordered is given sympathizing families. Persons who are slightly overweight must depend upon their own self-control in the selection of food.

It is, however, much easier to follow a definite program made out by the doctor or dietitian than to attempt to follow orders by cutting down quantities just anywhere and any way.

The reason some published schemes of diet have worked in some cases is usually because diet directions were specified. If a plan is not definite enough, there may be one of them quite different in results—either too much food to reduce really, or too little food for health, may be taken.

A man told me the other day that he had been able to reduce his weight naturally by the simple method of giving up going out for lunch, and instead, having a bottle of milk sent in. One woman takes one day each week for a diet of fruit alone, and says she keeps fit. Another woman gave up eating all sweets and bread. The most pleasant and generally most practical method is to reduce sweet or starchy foods, and fats, to a minimum, at all three meals. It is a good plan to take a cupful of hot bouillon, or tea, or a glass of milk between the frugal meals. In the meals themselves should remain plenty of fruit and vegetables.

Foamy Omelet.

6 eggs
6 tablespoons water
Pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter

Separate the eggs and beat the whites until stiff. To the yolks add the seasonings and the water. Beat until light. Cut and fold the whites into this mixture and pour into a hot pan in which the butter has been melted. Cook slowly, shaking the pan, until brown underneath, and place on the grate of the oven until dry on top. Fold and serve on a hot platter with tomato and onion sauce.

Mineral Mayonnaise.

¼ teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon salt
Cayenne
¼ teaspoon sugar
1 egg yolk
Lemon juice
Vinegar
1 cup mineral oil

Mix the dry ingredients and add the yolk of egg. Mix well and add one-half teaspoonful of vinegar. Add the oil gradually, drop by drop at first, then more quickly, beating with an egg beater. As the mixture thick-ens, thin with lemon juice or vinegar and continue adding oil. Mix with the materials for salad just before serving.

Spinach Salad.

1 pint boiled spinach
2 hard cooked eggs
Special french dressing

Chop the spinach. Chop separately the whites and yolks of the eggs and arrange them, mixed in little mounds on the spinach. Pour over the salad a french dressing.

Wolf Wins Honors as

Super "Police Dog"

Around the world has gone the fame of a wolf, probably the sole illustrious wolf on record, and it is in a Chinese magazine that one learns of him now, though he lives in Austria, and rates as Europe's smartest, says the Literary Digest.

He was a cub in the Bosnian woods when a Vienna police clerk, out hunting, captured him six years ago, and began to train him with animals already in service. Last year the wolf took first prize at an international police dog show, making not a single mistake in tests for training, skill, and accuracy. He had won more than two hundred prizes before that.

Commenting on his brilliant career, the China Journal remarked, "We are not surprised to learn of this wolf's accomplishments, for it is the experience of every hunter who has matched his wits against wolves that they are possessed of an intelligence which is uncanny in its human qualities, and to it is added super-sharpened senses of hearing and smell as well as an unerring instinct in detecting danger from man."

Unquestionably the so-called Alsatian owes its superior intelligence to the fact that it is little more than a domesticated wolf, notwithstanding that many lovers of this breed hold views to the contrary."

The butter exports in 1933 from Canada amounted to about 4,000,000 pounds, most of which went to the British Isles.

FABRIC STICKS TO METAL

A worker at a prominent institute has devised a method of combining metal with any sort of fibrous material by means of a metal adhesive consisting of certain low-melting alloys which will cling to both metal and fiber without affecting the properties of either. One of the first commercial results of the development is a form of corrugated roofing in which sheet metal is protected on either side by asbestos fiber firmly attached. Other materials such as wool, felt or paper, can be bonded equally well to metal.

Voter May Hop Over Party Line

Attorney General Kerner has ruled that altho two full calendar years will not have elapsed since the presidential, state and county primaries of 1932, persons who voted in those primaries may switch parties in the Illinois primaries of April 10.

Apparently basing his opinion on the theory that the legislative intent back of the two year limitation on change of parties was based on the thought of two political years instead of twice 365 days, the attorney general has replied uniformly to election officials in different parts of the state who addressed inquiries to him.

"You are informed," he wrote in one such answer, "that this office is holding that if a member of one party voted in the primary of that party in 1932, that fact alone would not prevent him from entering the primary of the opposite party in 1934."

"It might be entirely possible that during this two year period acts have been performed by the voter which would clearly show him to be a Republican or a Democrat, as the case may be, and, if that were true, of course he would not be eligible to vote in the primary of the opposite party."

"All I have held, however, is that a vote in the primary of 1932 does not prevent a vote in the primary of the opposite party in 1934."

The primaries of 1932 were held on April 12. There two days less than two calendar years will have passed by this year's primary day, April 10.

A Few Pointers About Christ Thompson Candidate for Sheriff

There is probably no public office that calls for a higher type of service than that of sheriff. As the sheriff is charged with the enforcing of laws, the very character of the community is very often determined by the character of the man who occupies this important office. We all desire to live and work in a law abiding community. We want our children brought up in an environment that will help to mould their character and make them useful and respected citizens.

Under our type of government, we believe in the exercise of personal liberty within the law. We resent fanaticism as much as we resent unwarranted personal license. In other words we want our community to be law-abiding; we want our wives and children safeguarded, but, at the same time, we want to avoid the narrow-mindedness that often makes a travesty of law. To strike a happy balance between the two, requires that we place in the sheriff's office a man of unquestioned honesty, wide experience, and proved courage.

Christ Thompson, who is seeking the Republican nomination for sheriff of Will County, is such a man. He is not a politician, he is not a professional office seeker or office holder. On the contrary, he is self-made business man, who has earned the confidence and respect of all those who have come in contact with him.

Mr. Thompson was born in Bergen, Norway, where he spent his boyhood days. When a boy of sixteen he came to America in search of greater opportunities. Arriving in Chicago, he first found employment with the Chicago Telephone Company, where he worked for several years. He then conceived the idea of helping the farmers of Illinois to make their farms more productive through the installation of tile drainage, and while engaged in this work came to know and understand the farmers' problems.

In 1898 he accepted a position with the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern Railroad as superintendent of bridges and construction work, and proved to be a very valuable man in the development of this railway.

Then in 1916, the Powers-Thompson Construction Company of Joliet, was organized and still bears his name: which company has built many large sewers, laid miles of hard road pavement, constructed concrete bridges and done other important engineering work in Will County. During his years with this company, Mr. Thompson was responsible for the employment of thousands of men in Will County, and his fairness and squareness has always been recognized by labor.

Mr. Thompson believes that the office of sheriff should be conducted along business lines, and as he is free from political factions and cliques there is every reason to believe that he will conduct the affairs of the county with fairness and impartiality, and always in the best interests of the taxpayers. He is, in our opinion, ideally qualified for the position - a man in whom every person can repose the utmost confidence. Mr. Thompson is married and resides with his family at 818 Western Avenue, Joliet.

March 31 Is Set As Deadline For Corn-Hog Sign-Up

Six o'clock on Saturday evening, March 31st, has been set as the deadline for all farmers in Will and other Illinois counties who wish to sign up in the government's corn-hog adjustment program, according to word received by Farm Adviser Braham from the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. This leaves only a short time for those farmers who have not yet come in on the plan to get their applications completed and turned in to the farm adviser's office, it was pointed out.

The deadline was set by the state advisory committee on the corn-hog campaign, with the approval of AA A officials in Washington and applies to all counties.

Sign-up Illinois farmers already has been a success and before the deadline arrives it is not improbable that 125,000 contracts will have been signed by farmers of this state who have agreed to cut their corn and hog production during the coming year under terms of the government plan, it was reported.

Several producers, it is pointed out, have signified their intentions of cooperating in the program, but have had difficulty in securing the

"There Is No Substitutue for Experience"

Estates coming before the Probate Court run into millions of dollars. No estate has suffered a loss directly due to the action or policy of this Court.

Nine years of banking experience has taught me the value of good judgment in investments for the estates handled by this Court. There has been no losses to estates on investments which have been approved by this Court.

Two years experience in abstract work gives me a keen insight into the titles of real estate and as to how the titles are affected by the law of the Probate Court.

Previous experience as a national certified public accountant fitted me for the proper auditing of all reports and accounts of estates coming before this Court.

Wm. McGee James Conducts Aggressive Race for Legislature

One of the most aggressive campaigns being conducted by any candidate in the seventh senatorial district is that of William McGee James, Republican candidate seeking nomination at the primaries, Tuesday, April 10th, for state representative. In an open letter to the voters

James points to his past record as a lawyer, writer and a professor of law at the Chicago Kent College of Law, and also calls attention to articles on taxation written by himself and to a book just released by him containing over 500 pages pertaining to Illinois Probate Procedure and Practice. Mr. James in addition to practicing law is at the present time a professor at the Chicago Kent College of Law where he teaches criminal law, code pleading and probate practice. Practicing law in Cook County for nine years, during which time he has earned for himself an enviable reputation for ability and integrity Mr. James feels that he has the qualities necessary to pass upon the making and voting of legislation for the state. Mr. James platform promises to support reform legislation for immediate relief of the Illinois and Cook County school systems. A re-codifying of the Illinois Criminal code and a general simplification of all law procedure within the state. He is for an economical state government, and is against any movement that will add to the oppressive tax burden now being placed upon the taxpayers of the state. Mr. James is an ex-service man and served overseas during the world war. He is married and the father of two sons. His home is in the Village of Wilmette. Several organizations and many prominent individuals have endorsed his candidacy for the state legislature.

Charles L. Fisher

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY TREASURER
WILL COUNTY

I was born at Springfield, Ohio on Sept. 19, 1897. I came to Joliet the following year with my father, the late Fredrick E. Fisher, who constructed many railroads, electric lines and city car lines in this vicinity. I have two brothers, William F. Fisher of Ottawa, Illinois, Doctor Hart E. Fisher of Chicago and one sister, Mrs. Rex, Dille, residing at Joliet. My mother has been dead since 1928 and my father died on March 12th of this year.

I am a graduate of the Joliet public schools, the Joliet Township High School, and I have approximately two years college credits. I also studied law for one year and received my training in auditing, accounting and tax work in which I am now engaged with the United States Training School at Washington, D. C.

I enlisted in the United States Army on April 14, 1917, in which I served two years during the World War, with 18 months overseas service in the 42nd (Rainbow) Division.

Upon finishing school after returning from the World War I entered the service of the United States Internal Revenue Department as a deputy collector at La Salle, Illinois. July 1, 1922 I was promoted to the position of Division Chief at Joliet where I was placed in charge of the collection of all Federal taxes in four counties, La Salle, Kankakee, Grundy and Will. In July 1926 when the division offices within the district were abolished, I was appointed a special zone deputy with post of duty at Joliet, Illinois.

I am a candidate on the Republican ticket for the office of Treasurer of Will County because I sincerely believe that I can efficiently conduct the affairs of that important office. The twelve years experience I have had with the Government as a deputy collector, auditor and division chief, has I believe, qualified me for any office requiring a knowledge of taxes and their collection, and if I am nominated and elected, I assure you the taxpayers of Will County that I shall put forth my best efforts toward an efficient and economical administration.

Noble J. Puffer

Noble J. Puffer who recently was endorsed by the Democratic Central Committee for the position of County Superintendent of Schools, is unusually well qualified for the position which he seeks both because of his eight years experience in that office and because of his professional training.

Mr. Puffer's experience covers a period of twelve years, four of that being in the high school field where he served as athletic director and assistant principal. He was for seven years Director of Education, which is the position of Assistant County Supt., under the leadership of the well known Edward J. Tobin, whose work with the School Home Projects brought him national fame.

As a background of professional training, Mr. Puffer offers an especially broad type of training. He has his Bachelor of Science Degree with a major in Education and Chemistry. In addition to his Master of Arts Degree conferred on him by the Northwestern University. His work there was in the field of supervision and administration.

While serving as Director of Education in Division One of the Cook County Schools, Mr. Puffer established a splendid reputation for efficiency and public service to the people of his community. His leadership in educational matters is well recognized where he is best known.

He is the author of several magazine articles published in the State Teacher's Magazine, the most recent of which was published in the last issue of the "Illinois Teacher." Mr. Puffer has been active in the State Teacher's organization, being a member of the Lake Shore Division and he has served as Chairman of the Rural section for two different periods. He is also a member of the National Educational Association.

In community activities he has been active and is a member of the Lions Club. He has also served as a member of the local Boy Scout Council and at one time served as Scout Master.

With his broad interest and his progressive spirit, his many friends feel that he is unusually fitted for the office of County Superintendent of Schools.

Michael F. Hennebry State Representative 41st District

To serve the people as State Representative over a period of years and still maintain the friendship of the entire community, is indeed an achievement and reflects highly on the character and ability of the man. Such is the case with Michael F. Hennebry of Joliet and Wilmington State Representative of the 41st district. There is a man who takes his duties seriously and who is never satisfied until he has thoroughly taken care of the most minute detail of every matter that comes before him. Fair minded and just in his every action, Michael F. Hennebry always considers every side of a case and treats one and all alike on their respective merits. He has always shown the right kind of spirit in being eager to work for any movement having for its purpose the progress of his community. Thus he is the kind of man who well merits a place in this column.

FORD GREET DEALERS OVER WIRE NETWORK

When Henry Ford addressed his representatives and dealers in 33 American and nine Canadian cities recently, he spoke over the largest countrywide telephone network of public address systems that has yet been connected. The talk was made to an audience of about 40,000, and concerned the prospects and plans for the automobile business during the year 1934.

The listeners were assembled in hotel ballrooms, theatres and similar meeting places in forty-two cities, ranging from Halifax, Nova Scotia, to Los Angeles and from Vancouver, B. C., to Jacksonville, Fla. The audience consisted of some 9,000 dealers, 17,000 salesmen and over 15,000 other members of the dealers' organizations.

In addition to Mr. Ford's remarks, there were talks by Edsel Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company, Wallace R. Campbell, President of the Ford Company of Canada, and others. A musical program which originated in Cleveland was also brought into the hook-up.

About 30,000 circuit miles of telephone wire were used in establishing this network.

HENRY KOERNER

OF MANHATTAN
CANDIDATE FOR

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION FOR COUNTY CLERK

As the time the spring primary draws close the consensus of opinion seems to point to the nomination of Henry Koerner of Manhattan for County Clerk on the Democratic Ticket.

Henry Koerner always has been known as an able man in business and in public affairs. He has always taken an interest in public affairs and has been a loyal member of the Democratic party and many prominent Democrats feel that the party owes him the nomination for his services of the past.

Mr. Koerner is thoroughly qualified for the position and in the event of his nomination would make an excellent candidate as people generally cognizant of his ability to fill the office.

In making this review we are pleased to call the attention of the Democratic voters of Will county to the candidacy of Henry Koerner for County Clerk and would suggest that you remember him on primary day.

AUGUST F. SCHWIESOW

OF MONEE

Candidate For

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION FOR COUNTY TREASURER

August F. Schwieso, a prominent citizen and farmer of Monee, has at the urgent demands of many friends and acquaintances throughout the county announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for County Treasurer, and from reports heard on all sides, he being the only farmer seeking this office from either party is receiving strong support.

Mr. Schwieso is well fitted for this office and he would surely make a strong candidate for County Treasurer.

People recognizing this fact have urged him to enter the race. He is worthy and well known citizen and his friends are enthusiastic in their support of his candidacy.

We are therefore glad in this review to compliment August F. Schwieso on the favorable comment his campaign receives and suggest that all take his candidacy into serious consideration at the coming spring primary.

ARTHUR E. KELLY

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY CLERK

Arthur E. Kelly of Joliet is conducting a real campaign for the office of County Clerk of Will County and his campaign is being well received over the entire county.

Arthur E. Kelly is a well known man of Joliet and Will County who enjoys an excellent standing as a citizen and due to his understanding of the problems of the people and their needs, he is most able and qualified to satisfactorily fill the office of county clerk.

In compiling this review which presents different individuals who have announced their candidacy for public offices, we find no candidate enjoying a higher reputation or standing and ask that this fact be kept in mind when the reader enters the booth on the coming primary day.

CANDIDATE FOR

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION FOR STATE
REPRESENTATIVE 41st DISTRICT

John A. Evans of Joliet, urged by his many friends and acquaintances, has announced his candidacy for the nomination of State Representative at the coming spring primary on the Democratic ticket.

John A. Evans has always been known as a worthy citizen and is well known, not only in Joliet, but throughout the entire county, and is held in esteem by his friends, who are enthusiastic in their support of his candidacy.

John A. Evans is running on the platform of efficient and economical administration. The great deflation demands that we have men in office who are working to this end and no doubt Mr. Evans would serve the people well.

In this review we are glad to compliment John A. Evans upon the reception his announcement has created and would suggest that all take his candidacy into consideration when in the booth at the primary.

In the office of Probate Clerk it requires experience in the probating of estates, etc., because the records of this Court are the basis of all abstracts. If the records are incorrect, your abstract is wrong. If errors occur it requires an expenditure of between $200 and $300 to obtain a clear title.

The service rendered taxpayers during my term of office could not be improved upon. This office is not supported by taxes, but by the fees it collects and the balance is turned over to the County Treasurer.

During the tenure term the Probate Clerk turned over to the County Treasurer over $29,000.00 in surplus earnings.

This candidate is worthy of your support.

RAYMOND MORRIS
OF JOLIET

Candidate For
DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION FOR PROBATE CLERK

Raymond Morris of Joliet is making a strong appeal for the nomination as the Democratic candidate for Probate Clerk and his candidacy is meeting with favorable comment throughout the entire county.

Raymond Morris is backed with excellent education and training and would be able to fill this office to the full satisfaction of the people. He is the possessor of an excellent reputation and counts his friends by the thousands, and carries the endorsement of many prominent citizens of the county.

In making this review we gladly call the attention of the reader to this candidacy and suggest that the selection of the Democratic nominee for Probate Clerk be given careful thought on Primary day.

"Get Better Men In Government And You'll Get Better Government"-- James C. Bell

JAMES C. BELL
for Congress

James C. Bell is Will County's only candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Congress. He is a young man of ability and integrity and has a good understanding of what this district needs for proper representation at Washington.

In his early youth he worked at hand labor in the steel mills and boiler shop in Joliet. He was a volunteer in the World war, serving nearly two years overseas. Returning home after the war he resumed his interrupted education, graduated from J. T. High School and made his way by his own efforts through Illinois State University, where he was graduated with high honors. He has added several years of business experience to his record. He was Commander of Joliet Post, American Legion in 1931 and during his term of office this Post was rated the most outstanding Illinois Legion Post.

He has a background that fits him to deal intelligently with problems that affect the people of this district, in whatever walk of life. He is a man who will give us the honest, conscientious service and true representation that we have a right to expect of a Congressman.

VOTE AT THE PRIMARIES APRIL 10th FOR
Will County's Only Republican Candidate for Congress

Frank G. Brumund

Attorney-at Law, Joliet

Candidate for Republican Nomination for Probate Judge

The history of our country from the beginning shows that many of the keenest minds of every generation have been attracted to the legal profession. This is, perhaps, a natural condition, since in that field exists the greatest opportunity for the exercise of intelligence and talents in the service of mankind. What ever may be the chief factor contributing to this condition, it is an established fact that in mentioning the names of a given number of people who are entitled to classification as the most useful citizens the members of the legal fraternity loom large.

Among many well known attorneys of Will County who by their achievement are entitled to more than ordinary reckoning is Frank G. Brumund, of Joliet, an able and fully qualified candidate for concerned that all tools and equipment on CWA Projects which have been purchased by the CWA, are the property of the Federal Government and must be accounted for. These projects are being checked frequently and any one found willfully destroying or taking into their possession, the above mentioned articles, will be thoroughly prosecuted.

Woman Leads

Men Candidates

As the race of 12 republican candidates from the State Legislature from the 7th district swings into the home stretch before the primaries on April 10th, the one woman candidate, Mrs. Bernice T. Van der Vries, has attracted wide spread support. Women's clubs, church societies and leaders in parent-teachers groups have pledged her their backing because of her training, fitness, and great interest in revamping the chaotic school situation in Illinois.

"We have had our problems with schools along the North Shore," said Mrs. Van der Vries this week, "but they are small compared with the school difficulties in most of the 94 towns in the district. Teachers are unpaid or underpaid. Our children are the innocent sufferers, and this must not be continued."

Mrs. Van der Vries has spent the past ten years in work on legislative and public problems as an officer in the League of Women Voters, members of caucus committees, and Trustee in the Village Council of Winnetka. During the past week she has been endorsed by Mrs. Gertrude C. Lieber, Mrs. Ralph B. Treadway, General Abel Davis, Rabbi Mann, Judge Charles M. Thomson, Homer Buckley, Edward E. Gore, Roy Massena, Mrs. Clarence Mead and many others as the outstanding and best fitted candidate in the district.

U. of I. Extension Service Grows in Value to Farmers

State College of Agriculture Assists in Carrying Out AAA Emergency Program.

Work which the extension service of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture has been doing for years in the interests of balanced, stabilized farming and a more satisfying farm home life has been broadened into new and more extensive fields in an effort to meet the recovery and adjustment needs of the one million farm people in Illinois.

During the past year, for instance, the extension service not only has shaped its regular program to the new needs of farmers and homemakers, but also has assisted in carrying out the emergency programs of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

From the beginning, the goals of the extension service have included such fundamentals as the conservation of land resources of Illinois as a continuing source of wealth to the state, the reduction of production and marketing costs, improvement in the quality of products, adjusting production to effective demand, expanding the market outlet for farm products and advancing the welfare of the farm home and the rural community.

Progress Accelerated. Emergency agricultural measures made necessary by the economic crisis have not changed or displaced these goals. They have only accelerated the rate of progress toward these objectives. Illinois farmers, for instance, have been adjusting their cropping systems for years as shown by the fact that the acreage of grains, such as corn and wheat, has been decreasing and the acreage of legumes has been steadily increasing.

Many producers, however, have been too hard pressed for tax and interest money to adjust their acreages as extensively as they would have liked to. Now the AAA has come forward with an offer of substantial financial backing to Illinois farmers who will cut their wheat acreage 15 per cent and their corn acreage 20 per cent and reduce their production of hogs for market 25 per cent.

Between 1,360,000 and 2,715,000 acres of Illinois land will be released for legumes and other replacement crops if Illinois farmers co-operate to the limit in the wheat and the corn-hog programs of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. If put in to legumes, this acreage would go far toward bringing to reality the extension service's long-continued teaching that one acre out of every four should be in legumes. This is but one example of how the emergency measures of the AAA are bringing closer the goals toward which the extension service has been working for years.

Worked Ahead of AAA. Even before the Agricultural Adjustment Act became a factor in Illinois agriculture, however, the agricultural extension service of the University of Illinois was revising its program to put added emphasis upon adjustment and recovery. This movement started as far back as 1928 when Dean Herbert W. Mumford and his co-workers held the first "Agricultural Adjustment Conference" out over the state. This government was continued with the 1933 arrangement of the extension service program.

With farmers suffering from weak markets, with prices for farm products touching new low points and with the failure of farm costs to decline in proportion to farm prices, the extension service started in the 1933 year with added responsibilities to farmers and homemakers. Not only was the welfare of the farm family at stake but what was of immediate public concern was the fact that the national well-being was in jeopardy. There no longer was any widespread doubt that national economic welfare largely depends upon the buying power of the individual farmer.

With this as a background, the program as carried out during the past year by the extension service has stressed: (1) markets and marketing; (2) production to meet consumer needs; (3) the farm home as a market for farm products; and (4) efficient low-cost administration of the farm and home and the development of community interest.

By means of definite projects carried out through county farm advisers, the extension service has offered regular and systematic help on these problems to the million farm people of the state.

Early Work in Dairying. Aided by the extension service, for instance, the most progressive dairymen of the state have not waited for an emergency relief project to help them bolster their incomes. These dairymen, who are members of dairy herd improvement associations organized by the extension service, have proceeded with a cow culling plan at a rate which if followed by all dairy men would mean the disposal of 322,200 of the poorer cows in the state within a year.

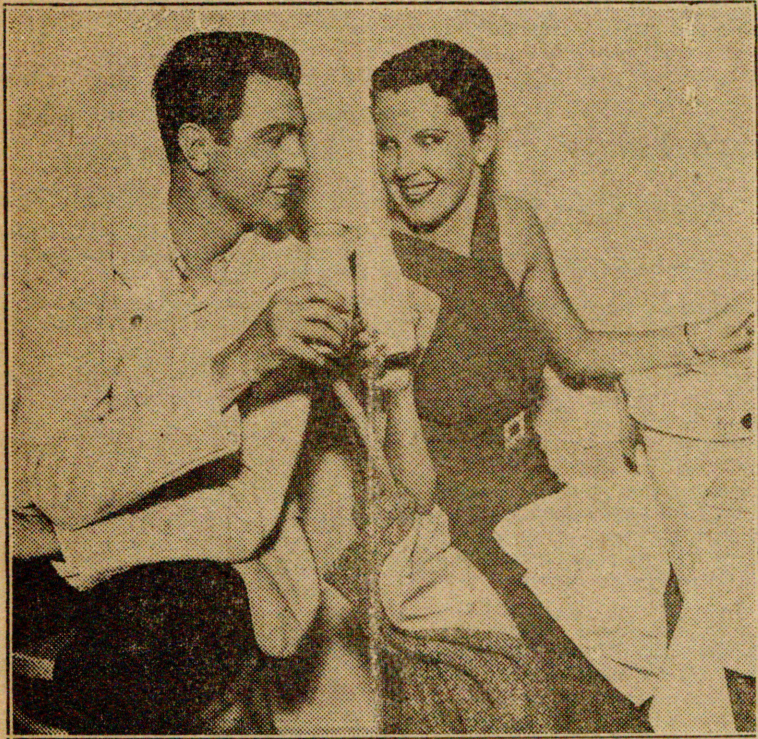

This not only would be a long step toward reducing costs and increasing net returns in dairying, but also would wipe out part of the present trouble some surplus. In this respect the cow culling plan which Illinois dairymen have practiced during the year is similar to recent proposals to the federal administration for adjustments in the dairy industry.

In addition to carrying on its regular program, the extension service has assisted with the preliminary educational and organization work in the wheat adjustment campaign and in the corn hog adjustment program, as well as in other emergency projects.

Research Accomplishments

If the University of Illinois did not teach at all, it would justify its existence by the results of its research. A dependable estimate during the winter of 1933 showed that the value of the returns to the State and Nation from results of research that have come from University of Illinois laboratories exceeds $12,000,000 per year.

Fresh Pasteurized Milk— A Permanent Pick-Up

Juliette Ware and George Blackwood, Warner Bros. featured players, drink a toast out of milk bottles in the studio's restaurant.

ARE you nervous, tired, feel pretty low at three o'clock in the afternoon, been increasing your quota of alcoholic beverages lately? Better increase your quota of fresh milk too then, because you're going to need a nerve tonic of some sort, and while you're about it you might as well select one that's pleasant to use.

Of course fresh milk is well known as a good "pick-up" after overindulgence. But if you use it regularly in abundance, you'll discover that it's also a "permanent pick-up," helping to counteract the bad effects of post-prohibition evenings, because good old fashioned milk is a great builder-up of the healthy body that can "take it" and still look young and beautiful on the morning after.

The function of food in preserving beauty is one that has long been overwhelmed and forgotten in the mass of beauty preparations for use on the outside which are constantly being presented to the modern woman.

Beauty Treatments That Are Inexpensive and Easy.

And you don't have to go out to expensive bars or beauty parlors to get your beauty foods—nor do they cost you forty cents for a few drops. Just sit at home and let the dependable milkman and grocer deliver these inexpensive beauty treatments at your door. Furthermore there is no law about your position while drinking your milk. You can take it standing up or sitting down, or standing on your head if you feel that way about it. (However, it's guaranteed not to send you under the table.)

In bygone days our knowledge about the effect of food on beauty was confined to such false statements, designed to discipline little Mary, as "eat your bread crusts—they'll make your hair curly" and similar extravagant promises.

Now little Mary, grown up, knows that there really are foods which when taken in abundance will make her hair healthy and glossy (if not curly), will give her a glowing complexion, healthy teeth and a more slender, well-rounded figure. Furthermore, nothing so forbidding as bread crusts is on the list—just fresh milk, fruits, vegetables and eggs are the Big Four of these beauty foods.

They do their part in making the difference between the faces reflected in that mirror over the bar or the lunch counter—they are part of the reason why the girl with the good-looking young man has so much more youthful sparkle than the faded creature two seats down. So why not try taking two or three glasses of milk—your "permanent pick-up"—every day together with plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables and give these foods a chance to show what they can do for your appearance.

Be Slim and Healthy on "Protective Food" Diet

Dorothy Jordan and Joel McCrea take an afternoon off at Malibu Beach for a bit of exercising.

CURVES a la Mae West may be in fashion, but overweight never is—and we'll hope it never will be, for overweight, besides being an enemy of beauty is also an enemy of health in people over thirty. The danger line is a point ten per cent over the ideal weight. The overweight person is more susceptible to many diseases. So to you women whose friends ridicule you for vanity in striving to reduce, let this health angle be an added spur to you to keep on with your program.

Of course the only real solution to the weight-control problem is diet, but "insane" dieting may be as dangerous as the overweight itself. Cut down on the amounts of foods, not the kinds. It is just as necessary that you have a balanced diet when you are reducing as at any other time. Build your reducing diets around an abundance of the protective foods—fresh milk, fruits, vegetables and eggs for they give the bulk that satisfies and yet are low in calories.

With these foods heading the menu, reducing need not be an ordeal, nor an expensive difficult process, for these foods are economical ones and they are conveniently deposited at your door every day, rain or shine, by your milkman and grocer.

"Training Diets Include Milk, Fruits and Vegetables," Says Dietitian

Here is a Well Balanced Dinner That Builds Good Health.

By FRANCES BERKELEY FLOORE
Director of Dietetics, St. Luke's Hospital

MOST of us are familiar with the fact that the growing child needs "all his stomach can hold" but it may be that he needs even more than that. This is not as unreasonable a statement as it sounds. It simply means, as explained by Dr. Lydia J. Roberts of the University of Chicago, that a "child's digestive tract particularly during the adolescent years, is too small to accommodate the large amounts required to meet his energy needs unless considerable quantities of concentrated foods are provided.

Among these concentrated foods she lists butter, cheese, eggs, milk, cream and peanut butter. So if you are ever tempted to serve a "dainty" meal to your teen age children remember this need for concentrated foods—and don't.

It is especially necessary that the high school boy who is going out for athletics should have these concentrated foods. Perhaps it may seem the results of disobeying proper diet rules are not as quickly noticed in decreased physical fitness as are the effects of breaking other training rules such as those referring to the use of alcohol and tobacco, for example, but nevertheless, the favorable effect which correct diet has on health is every bit as real as the unfavorable effect of the alcohol and tobacco.

The favorable effect which one particular food may have is clearly proved by the Olympic champions whose physical superiority is partly attributed to the fact that they use nearly three times as much milk and other dairy products as the average person.

Incidentally the training rules of the athlete who is making a special effort to perfect himself physically might well be put into practice by all high school students, both girls and boys and the parent may find it effective to appeal to the child through his admiration for the school football hero, pointing out that to be like him he must do as he does.

These are the four points that usually form the basis of the athlete's training rules:

1. About nine hours of sleep each night followed when possible by a cold bath and a brisk rub.
2. No smoking.
3. A well-balanced diet built around fresh milk, fruits, vegetables and eggs. On the day of the game breakfast should be the hearty meal and lunch a very light one consisting of one piece of toast, one poached or soft-boiled egg, one small boiled or baked potato and one glass of water. This lunch should precede the game by three hours. Although this information is not needed by the child who is applying the athlete's rules to his own life, it is an important point which the boy in training should know—and frequently doesn't.
4. Drinking milk and water rather than tea or coffee.

Upper left: Elwyn C. Smith at the switchboard at Greenfield, N. H. Center: Switchboard devised for operation by sightless attendants at the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind. The background is formed by part of a page from the P.B.X. directory printed in Braille for use at the Pittsburgh Institution.

That blindness does not deprive its victims of happiness, nor of a useful place in the workaday world, many splendid individual examples attest. Remarkable skill and dexterity in manual occupations is often developed by those who work in perpetual darkness.

Devise Special P.B.X.

So that the members of a training school and employment project for the blind, in Pittsburgh, might communicate readily with the world outside, a special private branch exchange switchboard was recently devised by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania and is now being operated by blind attendants.

Trains 75 Blind People

The Pennsylvania Association for the Blind trains and employs some 75 men and women in useful occupations. Here, for a number of years, a small cordless private branch exchange switchboard, handled by blind attendants, was in use. As the Association's telephone use increased, this small switchboard became inadequate, and it was found that a switchboard having 10 central office trunks and 30 extension telephones was required. A cordless switchboard of this size would prove impracticable, and telephone engineers undertook to develop a cord type switchboard for operation by blind attendants.

Door to All the World

A standard switchboard was modified by extending panels on either side, and all line signals and associated jacks were placed in a single row across the face of the board. Signals discernible to the operator's fingers replace the usual switchboard lamps, and buzzers with distinctive tones indicate the type of call.

Though working in darkness, these people are not cut off from the world about them. They use the telephone expertly, dialing with the ease of persons with normal sight, and the new switchboard affords them ready contact outside the building as well as intercommunication within it.

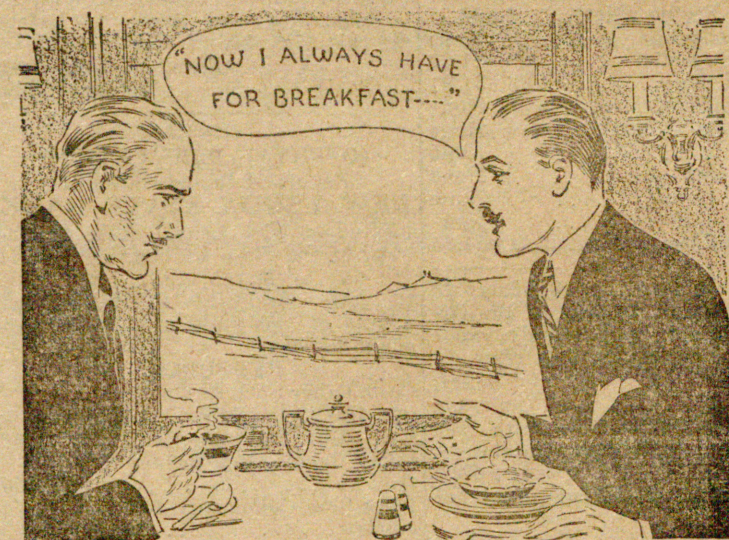

Switchboard Operator Since 1922

Skillful also is Elwyn C. Smith, of Greenfield, N. H., who operates the telephone service in that small New England town. Although not absolutely blind, having vision of three or four per cent of normal, Mr. Smith has never been able to read ordinary print and has never had more than a vague, blurred glimpse of the world. After leaving the public schools of Chatham, Mass., where he was born, he studied at the Perkins Institute for the Blind, and also taught manual training there. In 1922 he took over the duties at the Greenfield switchboard, which he has carried on successfully and to the satisfaction of the town's telephone subscribers.

Times Calls in Braille

The Greenfield switchboard is of the magneto type, on which small "drops" fall to indicate subscribers' calls. Mr. Smith's ears tell him when the drops on the switchboard fall, and he finds their positions with his hands and plugs the proper cord in the corresponding jack. A watch with special dial for the blind enables him to time long distance calls, and he records them in Braille, the special writing of the blind.

Besides his telephone work, Mr. Smith finds time for other duties in connection with the offices he holds in his church and in various fraternal organizations.

Better Breakfasts

HAVE you ever heard a man tell elaborately and at great length just exactly what he has for breakfast every morning? Most of us have, and many of us have wondered why he didn't whet up his appetite and follow the practices of modern dietetics by varying his first meal now and then.

In case your husband is not one of the men who wants his breakfast as unchanging as the inviolable laws of the Medes and the Persians, here's a suggestion for something to serve him in the morning that he'll be sure to appreciate.

This menu includes desirable fruits with its apples and lemon, and the grilled sweetbreads will prove a welcome variation to his usual breakfast.

Cider Apples Grilled Sweetbreads with Lemon Butter

Toasted Rolls Coffee

And here's the way to make Cider Apples: Core six baking apples, and pare them half way down. Set them in a baking dish. Cut the apples from an 8-ounce can in small pieces, and stuff in holes. Spread three-fourths cup brown sugar over tops of apples, and put half a tablespoon butter on top of each. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Add one cup cider to the apricot syrup, heat and pour around apples, then bake in a 350 degree oven until tender, basting several times. Cool. Serve with the cider syrup poured over and with cream also if desired. Serves six.*

ORLAND

Theodore Vagolas, aged 40 years, who has been employed on the Wash railroad at Orland Park for the past 15 years, died in the Burnside hospital last Tuesday following an attack of bronchial pneumonia and influenza. The funeral services were held Thursday with burial at Oak Forest.

All of the relatives of the deceased reside in Greece.

At the village board meeting on Monday evening, Dr. W. R. Schussler appeared before the board and urged that the matter of the completion of the Southwest Highway thru Orland Park be taken up with the county board. The village board decided to hold off any action until after the forthcoming elections.

Owing to the stormy weather, the weekly first aid meeting of the Orland Park Fire Department was dispensed with Monday night.

The CWA workers were engaged Tuesday in cleaning snow from the Wolf road. The snow plows were on the job on all the concrete roads in this section Monday night and on Tuesday morning so traffic was not interrupted by the snow.

All CWA work will be ended on Saturday, March 31st. Unfinished projects will be turned over to relief workers.

The Third district of Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will hold its annual meeting and election at the Ridge Park Field House at 66th and Longwood Drive, April 3rd at 10:00 a. m. Members are urged to attend this meeting.

TRUE SPEEDWAY DRAMA FOR BIG RADIO PARTY

A thrilling, true story from the Indianapolis Speedway—the voices of Dan Moran, president of Continental Oil Company, and John B. Kennedy, nationally known author and radio announcer—as well as special music by the Rondoliers quartet and Irving Talbot's 22-piece orchestra, will be blended into a coast-to-coast Conoco radio party on Wednesday night, April 4, over 27 NBC stations.

This all star program, known as the "Conoco Family" broadcast, will dramatize a recent major event, hitherto kept secret, but now making history in the automotive world.

Special guests for the evening will be 25,000 Conoco dealers, jobbers and employees in all parts of the country. Since the facts to be presented are endorsed by the American Automobile Association, however, and will prove valuable to motorists everywhere, a cordial invitation to listen in is also being extended to the general public.

Local radio owners who wish to listen in may do so by dialing their nearest NBC Blue network station, Wednesday night at 8:30 Mountain time, 9:30 Central time or 10:30 Eastern time.

Mail man finds freedom from furnace worries!

An interview with Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Wernicke, 15741 Marshfield Avenue, Harvey, Illinois

Mr. and Mrs. Wernicke are planning a new room in the basement now that the coal bin has been eliminated and there is no soot or dirt. The picture shows them going over their plans.

Let a U. S. Postman tell you what it means to have gas heat—and be free of furnace worries!

"I start my route pretty early in the morning," says Mr. Wernicke, "and I have to be out a good many hours during the day. Naturally, with our old heating unit, I worried about the furnace all the time. The house was either too hot or too cold. I never knew what was going to happen next. But now that we have gas heat I never even think about the furnace. No more coal to shovel. No more dirty ashes to haul. And it's a treat to come home to a house that's always cozy and warm."

Thousands switching to gas as rates go down

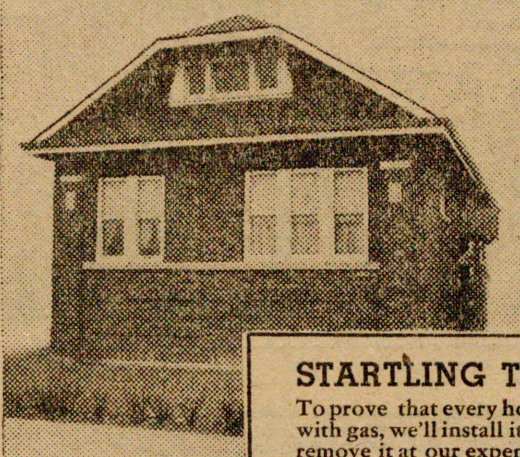

Imagine your home free from soot, dust, dirt, and furnace drudgery! Imagine getting just the temperatures you want, night and day, by adjusting a little thermostat on the wall. Why put up with furnace worries any longer, when rates for gas heat are so low! Think of it—gas heating rates are now only half of what they were during the 1930-31 heating season.

And—you can try gas heat without investing one cent! We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment, which amounts to $3 a month in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. You try it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas, we will take it out at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But—if you decide to keep gas heat—as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

Act now!

Don't delay! It is pure folly not to investigate this liberal offer on gas heat when it brings so many comforts and conveniences. Call your nearest Public Service office for full information.

The Wernicke home at 15741 Marshfield Avenue, Harvey, Ill. Over 20,000 Chicago-land homes have installed gas heat.

STARTLING TRIAL OFFER!

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense... and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

YOU INVEST NOTHING!

Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not—and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed—AT OUR EXPENSE. We make this offer because of our confidence in the perfection of gas heat.

ESSENTIAL!

Dreary days and uncomfortable nights might follow a cessation of your gas service. You could, of course, live without this service but modern life would certainly be lacking in many comforts which have almost become necessities.

This important service is constantly at your command, 24 hours each day, for cooking and heating and other purposes. This service must be maintained. It has become so essentially a part of living. And from the standpoint of economic common sense, the price you pay for this service must cover the production and distribution of it, plus a reasonable return on the money invested to make it possible.

BEAUTY TALKS

By

MARJORIE DUNCAN

NEW BEAUTY STANDARDS

AT FASHIONABLE restaurants and clubs, one sees evidence of new beauty standards. The smart woman is depending upon her own beauty to carry the honors, not upon embellishments, not upon gay or gaudy clothes, but upon the gleam of her hair, the transparent clarity of her skin, the perfection of her makeup, the groomed, cared-for look of hands, brows, face, figure; every item in the beauty ensemble.

Clothes depend on lines and intricate details of tailoring for their beauty. But faces present new and higher standards of feminine loveliness. Brows are more natural in shape, darker, and therefore more interesting; lashes, too, one does not see that blank look that very light brows and lashes inevitably impart. There's a youthful glow and freshness on faces that have seen some forty years, fewer wrinkles, less sagging, and that black velvet band at the throat hiding a creepy throat is completely gone (the heavens be praised!).

As for the hair, it has indeed become "Woman's Crowned Glory." At present, it is carrying more honors than any other phase of the ensemble. Less jeweled tiaras, less metal caps for evening, more beautiful hair, more intricately arranged, more intriguingly soft, flattering, altogether feminine.

And make-up! For evening it is indeed the last deft touch that transforms even a plain woman into a breath-taking beauty. It seems that as the hours wane, from morning to noon to night, lady's loveliness must be enhanced. The skin grows fairer. Rouge becomes deeper hued. Powder is lighter. Lips become brighter, more vividly colored. And even the most conservative have adopted mascara and eyeshadow for the eyelids, brows and lashes, for formal occasions. A great many women use eye make-up for daytime, too, but for evening the whole world seems to have become eye-conscious. Which is as it should be, for the eyes are the most interesting feature of the face.

Don't misunderstand that these new and higher beauty standards are in evidence for evening wear only. No, women are more beautiful today, at any hour, than they were ten years ago. A more feminine, cared-for, chic and smart beauty which can be summed up in two words "good grooming."

If you have any organic trouble or suspect that you have, see your doctor and let him help you to health. For remember that health is the foundation of beauty.

THE PERMANENT WAVE

SEVERAL years ago, many women feared getting a permanent wave. Machines were still in the experimental stage, operators not all experts, and test curls were not given. But—"the old order changeth." If Mrs. X had a permanent three or four years ago, which left her hair dry and brittle and the ends splitting, her neighbor is not intimidated by these unsuccessful results. For the smart woman of today knows that there are permanents and permanents, operators and operators, and she knows above all that for the wave to be successful her hair must be in good condition first.

It is important to take preliminary steps, because, if the hair is very dry and brittle, the permanent may only make matters worse. On the other hand, excessively oily hair does not take a wave very well. Two or three weeks before a permanent, start washing the hair with a shampoo that will remove the oil and lint will have gone, too. If your scalp is itchy, use a good hair tonic, or between shampoos use orris root or corn meal and brush carefully. When every bit of the dry shampoo has been brushed out of the hair, much of the oil and lint will have gone, too.

If you use a rinse after the shampoo, make sure that it will in no way conflict with the chemical action of the permanent wave.

I am often asked what method I approve. There are many that boast a good measure of success. Most of the machines have been perfected, the heat process is now well regulated. The important step is choosing a good operator, one who has a reputation for knowing the waving business, hair textures, the amount of heat necessary, etc. When this expert asks you whether your hair has ever been dyed, tell the truth. Answer truthfully any other questions about your hair. Some of the nationally-known waving experts offer a "test wave" or "test curl" which serves as a guide to whether or not the wave will take successfully, whether some bleach or dye will interfere with the chemical action of the wave, or some idiosyncrasy of hair or scalp make the permanent impossible or undesirable.

And after the wave, remember that the permanent does not mean the end of hair care. You must continue to keep scalp and hair in perfect condition, for a lovely wave and dull locks do not harmonize.

The Story of Eastertide in Music

FIXING OF EASTER Presented a VEXING PROBLEM

THAT Easter Sunday is what is known in ecclesiastical circles as a "movable feast," falling now upon one calendar date and again upon another, yet always at present upon a Sunday, is a fact casually accepted without doubt or inquiry practically the world over. Something of mystery, however, attaches to this chronological paradox that now and then perplexes the curious and the inquisitorial, declares a writer in the Kansas City Star.

The time of the Crucifixion is fixed as coincident with the Jewish Passover, or paschal feast, in the Jewish calendar month "Nisan," the month of the vernal equinox. The first obscurity in regard to the day arose from the Christian Gospels themselves. The Synoptic Gospels seemed to favor the day as the fifteenth of Nisan, that of St. John, the fourteenth. This established, by the preponderance of evidence, that the Crucifixion occurred on Friday, the day before the Jewish Sabbath. According to Matthew, the resurrection occurred "in the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week."

Ecclesiastical history preserves three distinct phases relating to the subsequent commemorative day which came to be known as Easter. Although the observance of Easter was at a very early period the practice of the Christian church, a serious difference as to the day for its observance soon arose between the Christians of Jewish and those of Gentile descent. With the Jewish Christians, who associated the death of Christ with the sacrifice of the Paschal Lamb at the Passover, which ended "on the fourteenth day of the moon at evening," the Easter festival followed the paschal tradition, no matter what day of the lunar month it chanced to fall upon. The Gentile Christians, on the other hand, following the Synoptic Gospels, identified the first day of the week, Sunday, as the day of Resurrection, and kept the preceding Friday as the anniversary of the Crucifixion. This was the phase of the controversy that characterized the first centuries of Christianity.

The second stage in the Easter controversy centers around the Council of Nice, A. D. 325, where so many doctrinal points were given authentic sanction. This council was summoned by Emperor Constantine. The decision of the council was that Easter was to be kept on Sunday throughout the Christian world. It was at this point that astronomical science entered into the controversy. The correct date of the Easter festival was to be calculated at Alexandria, the then home of astronomical science, and the Roman pontiff was to communicate the date to the churches. This arrangement fixed the date of Easter Sunday as the Sunday "following the fourteenth day of the paschal moon," and

Is Easter time!

I sing again
Of love's redeeming grace
That opened wide the heavenly gates
To make for me a place;
And may I ever faithful be Until I see His face.
'Tis Easter time!

I pray again
To know His blessed will,
And in my heart I hear again
His voice say, "Peace, be still";
For all the emptiness of life
He comes from heav'n to fill.
'Tis Easter time!

I live again—
The stone is rolled away
From every tomb of doubt and grief—
My night is turned to day;
And in my heart Christ reigns as king
This resurrection day!

Frank Chester Cheever in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

defined the paschal moon as "the moon whose fourteenth day followed the spring equinox." But this ruling did not settle all difficulties. The third phase of the controversy arose from the divergent calendars and cycles in vogue in the Eastern and Western church centers. St. Augustine tells us that in the year 387 the churches of Gaul kept Easter on March 21, those of Italy on April 18, while the Egyptian Christians celebrated April 25 as Easter day. The British and Irish churches for a long time adhered to an ancient system of computation, though they observed Sunday as the Easter day.

With the adoption of the Metonic cycle as a guide, the formula for fixing the Easter day was determined as "the first Sunday which occurs after the first full moon, or, more accurately, after the first fourteenth day of the moon, following the 21st of March, which is the vernal equinox." As a result, the earliest possible date of Easter is March 22, the latest April 25.

Observance of Lent

THE observance of Lent began within 150 years after Christ's time, but there was no specified number of days of fasting. It was extended to about 40 days by the Fourth century and in the Eighth or Ninth century it was fixed to commence with Ash Wednesday and end with Easter Sunday. Forty days are thus observed, since fasting is not observed on the intervening Sundays.

EASTER RABBITS AND EGGS HAD PAGAN ORIGIN

EASTER, commemorating to Christian believers the resurrection of the Savior of Mankind, is almost universally observed as a time for joy and feasting. On Easter Sunday morning thousands of boys and girls will return home from Sunday school and church to hunt for Easter rabbits and eggs.

The origin of egg-rolling which most youngsters enjoy so much, says Pathfinder Magazine, is supposed to have begun centuries ago from the practice of farmers rolling eggs over their land to be sure of abundant yields at harvest time. This was because the egg was the pagan emblem of the germinating life of early spring. The children are told that the rabbits lay the eggs, and for that reason the latter are nearly always hidden away in nests or in flower beds in the yard and garden. The rabbit is another pagan symbol and has always been an emblem of fertility. Modern people have lost knowledge of what these symbols mean, yet they have continued these old pagan customs.

As to the coloring of Easter eggs a religious encyclopedia says: "Because the use of eggs was forbidden during Lent, they were brought to the table on Easter day colored red to symbolize the Easter joy. This custom is found not only in the Latin, but also in the Oriental churches. Christians are supposed to have adopted the egg-rolling custom to symbolize the resurrection and the eggs were colored red in allusion to the blood of redemption."

Easter Monday is always a gala day for the kiddies, if they have any unbroken eggs left, especially is this so for those youngsters in Washington. On that day thousands of them go to the White House and Capitol lawns to roll their vari-colored eggs.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for April 1

THE CHRIST RISEN (Easter Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—John 20:1-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God.—Col. 3:1.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living With the Living Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Reality of the Resurrection.

The resurrection of Christ is one of the foundation truths of Christianity. It is the grand proof that Christ was what he claimed to be, the Messiah, the Son of God (Matt. 12:20-40; John 2:19-21).

I. The Empty Tomb (vv. 1-10). John does not enter into a description of the resurrection of Christ, or give any proof other than the empty tomb and that Jesus had repeatedly manifested himself afterward. To see the body of Christ disfigured with a spear thrust and nail prints, and the empty tomb, was all that faith needed. In this lesson John describes the processes of his own conviction touching Christ's resurrection.

1. The testimony of Mary Magdalene (vv. 1, 2). This woman, out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons (Mark 16:9; Luke 8:2), announced the fact of the empty tomb to Peter and John. Prompted by great love to him for his kindness to her, she went early to the tomb even "when it was yet dark." She had realized great good at his hand, therefore she could not rest until she had done her utmost for him. The measure of one's service for Christ is the degree in which he realizes the benefits conferred.

2. Personal investigation by Peter and John (vv. 3-10). The news of the empty tomb which Mary brought so moved John and Peter that they both ran to investigate. Their investigation assured them of the reality of the resurrection. The removal of the stone from the sepulcher, and the arrangement of the grave clothes, convinced them that this would not have been done by an enemy.

II. The Manifestations of the Risen Lord (vv. 11-29).

1. To Mary Magdalene (vv. 11-18).

a. Mary weeping at the empty tomb (v. 11). Peter and John went home but Mary could not. She stood there weeping. She really should have been rejoicing that the grave was empty.

b. Mary questioned by the angels (vv. 12, 13). Through her tears she saw angels at the tomb who inquired as to the cause of her sorrow.

c. Jesus revealed himself to Mary (vv. 14-16). She first saw the angels and then her eyes lighted upon the Lord. She did not recognize him in his resurrection body but his voice was familiar to her. As soon as he called her by name she recognized him and fell at his feet weeping.

d. Jesus forbade her to touch him (v. 17). This showed that she was now coming into a new relationship to him. Besides this, the disciples were still in doubt and sorrow. "Go tell my brethren" was the message she must carry.

e. Mary's testimony (v. 18). She told the disciples that she had seen the Lord.

2. To the disciples (vv. 19-29). This is the first appearance to the disciples as a body. For fear of the Jews they met in a private room and barred the door. While they were discussing the strange happenings of the day, the Lord mysteriously appeared among them.

a. When Thomas was absent (vv. 19-23).

(1) His message of peace (v. 19). He did not come with censure for their failure and desertion. Their conduct merited censure, but his consideration was too tender for that.

(2) He showed his hands and his side (v. 20). Having calmed their fears he gave them unmistakable evidence of his resurrection.

(3) He commissioned them (v. 21). "As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you." This commission was not simply to the eleven but to all the believers (Luke 24:33).

(4) He bestowed the Holy Spirit upon them (v. 22). He breathed on them and said unto them, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." Only as empowered by the Holy Ghost can a disciple go forward as a successful witness for his Lord.

(5) The disciples' authority (v. 23). This authority was not by virtue of office but by virtue of having the Holy Ghost.

b. When Thomas was present (vv. 24-29). His absence deprived him of a vision of the Lord.

(1) The victory of sight and touch (vv. 24-28). Jesus graciously supplied the evidence which Thomas needed.

(2) Greater blessing for those who see only by faith (v. 29).

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from unwise dosing with harsh cathartics may cause bowel strain, and even set up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be safely relieved in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children—and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

To relieve the soreness and dryness and hasten the return of skin comfort and health, apply soothing

Resinol

Beauty is more than skin deep

Ask your doctor. Ask the beauty expert. GARFIELD TEA—a cup nightly—often does more for your skin and complexion than costly cosmetics. Expels poisonous body wastes that clog the pores and eventually cause maddening, eruptive skin. A week of this internal "beauty treatment" will astonish you. Begin tonight. (At your drug store)

HENRY LAUTERBACH

SUPERINTENDENT WILL COUNTY FARM, JOLIET

To be superintendent of the Will County Farm at Joliet, is not a bed of roses. It has hills and sharp corners and few (men) would languish under its responsibilities.But Henry Lauterbach who so capably holds this office is a man who has no dislike for responsibilities, arduous duties that must be per-formed and exigencies that must be met. And civic spiritedly he works harder to acquire himself of these duties in an efficient and admirable manner, than were it his own business, enhancing his own fortune.
Such men are true builders of a community and are to be duly appreciated. For example, Mr. Lauter-bach could be devoting himself to some other occupation that would bring him a much greater emolument in dollars and cents. But to a man of Mr. Lauterbach's type, dollars are not to be compared with the privilege of doing a public service that is constructive.

CAPITAL'S TELEPHONE

CO. MARKS 50TH YEAR

Washington Had 800 Telephones

in 1883; Now 64 Families

in Each 100 Have Service

While Chicago was celebrating A Century of Progress, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company was celebrating a half century of telephone progress in Washington, D. C.The first telephone installed in the Capital City was in the office of the Chief Signal Officer of the Army and connected with Fort Myer, Va. That was in October, 1877.A year later, a system of private lines was installed for a number of Washington business men. These telephones were leased from the National Bell Telephone Company by a local company, the National Telephonic Exchange. This later became the National Capital Telephone Company.It was in 1883 that the present company, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, was incorporated. At that time Washington had but 800 telephones, and the rate of increase was slow. "Long Distance" then extended no further than to Baltimore, which city was proud of the fact that it had as many as 1,000 telephones.Today, Washington ranks near to the very top of American cities, telephonically, having 353 telephones for each 1000 of its inhabitants. Only one major city in the world—San Francisco—has more.Out of every 100 families in Washington, sixty-four now have telephones in their homes. These telephones are served by fifteen central offices, of which seven are of the dial type and the other eight are manual.In the last decade, Washington's population has increased 11 per cent, while the number of telephones in use has shown an increase of 77 per cent. In 1923, only 43 Washington families out of every 100 had telephones, contrasted with 64 out of every 100 today.

Bald Mouse Problem

A new scientific remedy for baldness is said to grow hair on bald mice. We were not aware that the bald mouse problem had become serious enough to merit the attention of science.
